Look at it

We look upon our work as an opportunity to be of service. I have practically the same problems as any other business or profession and is subject in the same way to common sense and fair dealing. But we think it gives unusual scope for sympathy and thoughtfulness, and these qualities have a large part in the ideal we set for ourselves.

New Prizes Are Offered

© The H. K. Webster Company of Lawrence, Mass., offers a $2.50 gold piece to highest ranking junior, senior and young farmer in each county in swimming race at least five enrolled in each class.

The Hazel-Atlas Glass Company of Wheeling, W. Va., offers a $2.50 gold piece to the senior county champion in the swimming project.

These prizes will be awarded at the county contest.

State 4-H Camp Held in Lewiston

The second State 4-H Club Camp is being held at the State fair grounds. Lewis is held for the girls in canning, cooking and housekeeping and sewing. There will be dairy, poultry and potato judging for the boys.

Each morning camp, the club members will parade one afternoon and evening accompanied by a band. A recreational program of games will be carried out. There will be educational tours to the State Fair and the counties and will exhibit their animals and take part in a showmanship contest. The girls will wear the green and white 4-H Club National uniform and the boys the Maine Scout uniform. A Red Cross nurse will be on duty at the 4-H camp. A representative of the National Red Cross will give a first aid course during the week. Delegates from each county eligible to attend this camp are:

Girls: Alta Harriman South Paris; Ella Rice, Watford; Ida Charles, West Sumner; Wilma Buck, West Buckfield; Anna Weston, Andover; Edna Weston, South Paris; Mabelle Hersey North Watford.

Boys: Alvin Hersey, North Watford; Fred Judkins, Upton; Lynn Weston, Canton Point; Arnold Tash, South Paris.

These boys and girls must have their work up to date and inspected by the County Club Agent.

LAUNDRY TASK DISLIKED BY MOST WOMEN

Replied to the question: "What household task do you dislike doing most?" several hundred Maine women placed laundry either first, second or third in a long list.

As a result of observing how some women have made laundry work easier, Edna Cobb, home management specialist for the Extension Service, offers the following:

"Often there is a small room opening out of or near by the kitchen which could be used for a laundry. Many people are giving up their pantries and moving all the kitchen equipment into the kitchen. The discarded pantry might in turn become the laundry room. A separate room permits of the arrangement of a washing and an ironing section on opposite or adjacent sides of the room. A closet or cupboard for holding equipment and supplies is indispensable and should be placed so that it is convenient to both the washing and ironing sections of the room. The source of water, if it is not piped to the tubs, should be as accessible to the tubs as possible. The stove should be near the washer or tubs, so that the clothes can be transferred easily if they are to be boiled. The stove should be near the tubs and table, and near the ironing board in case irons must be heated on it. Some provision should be made for a clothes rack near the place where the clothes are to be hung."

one of the reasons why the laundry process is such a wearisome job. Most of the washing is done about half way up the tub, so the working height at that point should be such that one does not have to stoop at the shoulders. A portable wash tub may be raised or lowered by means of the top of the washboard is too high, it may be lowered by cutting off part of the legs. The height of the ironing board should be such that the force from the shoulder can be applied easily, 31 or 32 inches is a good average height."

STATE FEDERATION AGAIN OFFERS SILVER SHIELD

The Maine Farm Bureau Federation is again offering prizes to the three counties which score the highest in the coming membership contest. The first prize is a handsome silver shield with the name of the winning county engraved upon it.

The second prize is $30.00 in cash and the third is a cash prize of $20.00. Oxford County Farm Bureau won the second prize last year. Officers of our county Farm Bureau are:

Pres.—B. W. Sanderson, E. Waterford. Vice Pres.—L. E. McIntire, E. Waterford.

Sec.—Treas.—Rose L. Swan, South Paris. It takes real team work on the part of district captains and local societies to conduct a successful membership campaign.

Oxford folks, with the right spirit, stand a good chance to win this year.

FARM BUREAU EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE HOLDS IMPORTANT MEETING, AUGUST 25

George E. Lord, County Agent Leader, and Miss Estelle Nason, Home Demonstration Agent Leader, will be the principal speakers at the next meeting of the Executive Committee of the County Farm Bureau which will be held at South Paris on August 25.

Much highly important business will come before the committee at that time including the discussion and formulation of plans for Extension work in Oxford County for 1933, arrangements for the annual Farm Bureau meeting which will be held in October, plans for conducting the coming membership campaign, and the preparation of an annual budget of county funds to be submitted to Farm Bureau members for adoption at the annual meeting.

GOOD TIME TO USE WHITEWASH

Now is a good time to use whitewash on dairy stables, milking houses and poultry houses. At least that seems to be the opinion of those who have inquired recently of the county agent for a formula for homemade whitewash. Here are three which are effective and low in cost.

Government Whitewash—Slake one-half bushel of good fresh lime in boiling water, keeping it covered during the process. Strain and add a pack of salt dissolved in water, three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste, half pound of Spanish white wash and one pound of clear glue dissolved in warm water. Mix these well together and let the mixture stand for several days. Keep the wash thus prepared in a kettle and apply as hot as possible.

Waterproof Whitewash—Slake one bushel of quick lime in thirteen gallons of hot water; add two pounds of salt and one pound of sulphate of zinc dissolved in two gallons of boiling water, then add two gallons of skimmed milk and mix well.

Factory Whitewash—For inside walls, ceilings, etc., slake one bushel of quick lime in fifteen gallons of water, allow to stand under cover for an hour or so and then add two and one-half pounds of rye flour beaten up in one-half gallon cold water, adding two gallons boiling water mixed with a solution of twenty-one pounds of rock salt dissolved in two and one-half gallons hot water. Mix the flour and salt solutions and add to the slaked lime.

WARNING TO BEAN GROWERS

The Mexican bean beetle has recently been found in Cape Elizabeth, Gorham, South Portland, Bridgton, Cumberland and Wells. The beetle, which lays the eggs and also feeds on the leaves, is about one-third inch in length, oval in outline, and pale yellowish to brownish in color.

The eggs are black and each wing cover is marked with eight small black spots arranged in three transverse rows. The larva is about two-fifths inch in length, light yellow in color and clothed with stout branched spines. When mature it attaches the tip of its body to the leaf and transforms into a yellow pupa about one-third inch in length.

Look over your bean field carefully and if you find any vines with the leaves badly ridged, look on the under side for the yellow culprit. The best control measures for now is to pull and burn all affected hills. All beetles and larva destroyed now will save a lot of trouble for next year. Please notify the Farm Bureau Office if you discover any of the beetles or larva on your beans. The situation now is not at all serious, but it may become a real menace to the bean growers if this insect gets much of a headway in the state.

The "Busy Diggers" 4-H Club of Bethel held a meeting and garden tour on Friday, August 12. County Agent Ridley attended the meeting, pointing out the various ways in which the boys could improve on their efforts another year and for the next few weeks in their gardens. Projects visited were doing the according to the county agent, with the exception of one garden somewhat damaged by a wandering cow.

EXPECT LARGE CROWD AT FIELD DAY, AUGUST 20

Next Saturday, Aug. 20, is the big day at Songo Lake, Bethel, when members and friends of the Oxford Pomona Grange friends of the Oxford County Farm Bureau will meet for recreation and a general good time.

The speaker, Judge Max L. Pinar, of the Portland has been previously announced as a most outstanding part of the program. Music for the day will be furnished by Howard Shaw's six piece orchestra from South Paris. A number of contests will be run off in the morning. Basket lunches will be in order and much can be secured at the lake in the way of sandwiches and drinks. There will be ample space for parking automobiles, horse-drawn vehicles, airplanes, bicycles, etc., and plenty of shade for all in the big grove.

BATES—WEST PARIS

Bernasik Returned Home—Brook Recovering from Injuries—Wagars Returned from Canada.

Mrs. Alanson Cummings helped to decorate a boat to represent the American Legion for the parade at Bryant Pond Field Day, last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bernasik have returned from Old Orchard, where they have been employed for the summer season. They took a trip to New Jersey via bus line for a week's visit to Mr. Bernasik's parents and back here by auto, last week.

John E. Brock is recovering as well as could be expected from his accident last week, when he injured his face with several cuts and a broken nose, requiring stitches, also a finger cut, while putting a tire on an auto truck, when the pressure broke the rim, which flew back into his face. A very painful accident.

Mrs. Jennie Cummings and granddaughter, Zilpha Barrows, and Mrs. Lucinda Waterhouse are spending this week at Mechanic Falls, guests of Mrs. Flora Cummings and attending the Christian Advent Camp Meeting there. Several from here attended last Sunday and through the week. The blind evangelist Rev. Thomas P. Fletcher, who was here last winter, is assisting in the meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Emery and children, Gordon and Muriel, and Helen and Helmi Cummings went to their camp on Indian Pond, Tuesday, for a vacation.

Mrs. Truman Emery and son Thomas are visiting her sister, Mrs. Frances Billings, in Boston.

BUCKFIELD—NORTH END

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bennett and two children took supper with her cousin, Mrs. Gertrude Hammond, Saturday night.

Miss Sylvia Morgan, North Paris, visited her aunt, Mrs. Maudat Rowe, recently, while there, she attended the Barn Dance at North Buckfield, with them. Mrs. Arthur Allen and Mrs. Charles Tucker also went with the Rowes.

Mrs. Gertrude Hammond and Ida attended the show at Turner with Frank Warren, Wednesday evening, and again Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Turner and Kenneth.

Mr. and Mrs. Silver Rowe and son, Charles, spent Saturday night and Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Vertie Warren, East Buckfield.

Chester Rowe is some better, so he is up in the wheel chair.

Mrs. Maud Bigelow is visiting her sister, Mrs. Ella Dams, recently. Grover Keene has sold his mare, "Dora Simmons" to L. Benson, West Sumner.

Eugene Hazelton and Harold Stevens have bought the standing grass on the Masonic farm, Buckfield, and Floyd Stevens are cutting it.

Little Barbara Rowe has been visiting her aunt in North Paris.

There was a ball game on the grounds here, Sunday, West Minot against Buckfield. Buckfield beating 9 to 2.

There will be a game next Sunday in the afternoon, between Buckfield and Bethel. In last week's items it said that some of the boys appeared in new fall suits, and should have been new half suits.

Linwood Morse has had to have his dog killed, as it was sick.

Mrs. Rozetta Warren and Mrs. Hazel Foster spent Thursday, August 11, with Mrs. Gertrude Hammond.

A nationwide drive is on during August for increased safety on our highways. Gov. Gardner has issued an appeal along these lines and more careful driving and use of the state highways with less accidents, is the result desired.

Chapter VI

Charley Davenport Comes East. Two Important Business Matters Started

Harry had been writing Charley Davenport to sell his Rocky Mt. News paper at East and start another newspaper at Comiston Falls. Having great confidence in Harry's judgment in a financial point of view and desiring to be where his former pal was and take part on his side in his fight with the Boss—all of which he had learned from Harry's letter, Davenport had the opportunity to dispose of his newspaper plant at a big profit to a rival publication in the city and did so, and left for the East. Arriving in Comiston Falls he was received by Harry with the greatest satisfaction. That part of Harry's building on the corner of Main and North streets, which had formerly been occupied for a department store as related in a former chapter, was assigned to Charley for the new newspaper plant. He went to Boston and purchased a new press and material and engaged Fred Stewart as foreman of the establishment intending to pick up in the village the compositors, job men, reporters and others required. When it became known that a newspaper was to be published in the village the interest and excitement of the people of Comiston Falls was boundless. The business men generally of course were delighted, but the Boss, as might be supposed, sneered at the project as one of that Westerner's schemes got up to oppose him and would amount to nothing. The people, generally, however, took an entirely different view of the matter. The establishment of a newspaper in the village was a new enterprise which would be a great benefit to the community and they were surprised to learn that any one, especially Jedediah Baxter, who had always pretended that his chief interest was the prosperity of Comiston Falls, opposed it. At length the equipment for the office was all in place and the establishment ready to start up—Miss Susan Winthrop, Justice Winthrop's daughter, had been secured as chief clerk and proof reader and Elsie Faber from the Hartford Courant office as principal compositor, with Dana Jones, a newcomer in the place, for general reporter and assistant editor, with helpers in every department, the first issue of The Comiston Falls News appeared. Typographically it was a very attractive sheet. For a weekly independent paper it contained a summary of the seven days news in state, nation and the world. Its local columns had all the occurrences of general interest, and its editorial comments and notes were able, piquant, sharp and very readable. It had for its literary department, a short poem contributed, and a story—selected. A. A. Professor at Yale had the first number of a series of sketches on the early beginnings of the settlements in the lower Connecticut valley. Its advertising columns were fully taken up with local and foreign ads., and notices which indicated well for its financial support, to which was added a subscription list of over thirty hundred, that promised to be largely increased later. This was but a sample of the succeeding issues which were better, if anything, as the paper aged. The citizens of the village were delighted with their new paper and its editor felt confident that he could not only make it a financial success, but a power for good, in that region of the country where he was located.

The Boss couldn't quite understand for a long time that a new order of things in the place was in progress and notwithstanding his sneers and carping, his power over the people and events was truly and swiftly slipping away from him.

Charley told Harry that there was need of a bank in the place and they went to Hartford to consult some financial concerns there with the result that a trust company was organized under the general name of the Comiston Falls Financial Company. Of course it took some time to get in shape for business, but when it was ready the Hartford members sent George Atwood, son of the president, as cashier and general manager, for his father told the institution should be well established and running smoothly. Young Atwood and his wife, Ione Harlow Atwood, engaged rooms at Mrs. Thompson's on North street and while they lived at Comiston Falls were very prominent in social circles of the place. Mr. Carter from his intimate knowledge of the people and their financial standing, became one of the most valued members of the corporation about making loans and being fully compensated for his services, found it was much better for him financially than being a worker for the Boss, with scanty reward. To be fully appreciated by the best people, was to him now a great satisfaction. When the matter of a principal clerk in the office of the company was under consideration,

Harry proposed that Miss Janet Carter, if possible, be secured, which was promptly assented to by her father saying that she might take the position temporarily till some one else was found for her place. She was delighted to have the position offered her and at once assumed the duties of the office.

Business was very good from the first, and as Robert Evans was attorney for the corporation he had to draw up all the legal documents, including deeds and papers for loans obtained and he at once acquired a large office business. We shall see how he soon procured a standing at the bar as a trial lawyer.

"Wigwam Now and Then"

Development of Camp Wigwam During Past Twenty Years Symbolizes Growth of American Camp Movement

The camp movement has been called one of America's most important contributions to the field of education. It would not have deserved this commendation had not its leaders realized the potentialities of camping as an institution, which is capable of moulding the lives of the adolescent boy or girl in addition to providing means of physical self-betterment. The stride toward such educational values in camping is a recent one. It is indeed only short span of years which separates the few progressive camps with their well-balanced athletic and educational programs from the one-sided athletic camp, which still exists today, but which is gradually disappearing. The vision, resourcefulness and appreciation of values which the leaders of the camping movement possessed is largely responsible for the educational program which is serving to develop young manhood, well-rounded physically and culturally.

The rise of Camp Wigwam typifies the attainment of values in camping. Its growth over a period of twenty years is symbolic of the march of the camping movement into the social life of today. The educational program which was early experimented with and developed at Wigwam has grown to full-sized proportions and has directly or indirectly influenced the policy of many recent camps operating today. Through a period of twenty years, under the same leaders who founded the camp when camping, as an institution, was in its infancy, Wigwam has continued to expand and change its program, constantly within the tapering limits of a unified plan for the service of the American boy.

Mr. Lehman met Mr. Mandelstam for the first time in the spring of 1910, and the plans for a camp were formulated. The site of the first Camp Wigwam was Winsted, Connecticut, in the Berkshires. As Mr. Mandelstam (now known as Mandy) explains: "In soliciting the parents of the boys who made the nucleus for the first year, a group of nineteen, we had very little to offer, except a name and a location. The parents of a camp, though we had no location of any kind in mind. The parents understood the situation; the camp idea was novel; and our personalities which we never saw the camp, proved sufficient guarantee that their children would receive the care and supervision required. The fee charged at the time was $175. Aside from the camp, man and myself, we had a doctor, one counselor, a chef and a maid."

Quite a humble beginning for Camp Wigwam. Mandy and Mr. Lehman (ever since known as "Pop") were connected pioneers. True it was that Pop was an experienced outdoor camper who, like Mandy, had studied the possibilities of a boys' camp, but in these early years the two youthful pioneers were facing all the difficulties which a camp director and staff encounters today—but without the information and experience which the latter have at their command. However, Mandy's guide delighted Wigwam boys by his visit to camp. That season also witnessed the establishment of two institutions which are now traditions at Wigwam: The Hall of Fame to pay tribute to members of the staff who had made an outstanding contribution to Wigwam, and Red and Gray Week, a form of competition in which the two camps of Wigwam, the Red and Gray, were to compete in all activities in most of all camps today.

In 1922, Wigwam publications were reorganized and expanded, with the Wigwam entering a new phase of its career as an annual record of the season. The task of one publication serving as a reporter, as a critic, as an advertising medium, as a pictorial record of camp life, as an expression of the red-blooded American boy's attitude toward things, and as a container of the camp's overflow of humor, besides having to serve as the aspiration for a regular morning educational activity in the camp routine proved too much and consequently a weekly newspaper of four pages relieved the Wigwam of its role as a news reporter.

The season of 1923 witnessed the introduction of Birthday Night, one of Wigwam's most elaborate traditions, surpassed only by the Water Carnival and Campers' Day. This event was devised to replace the former method of celebrating birthdays by awarding a cake to the individual birthday. Birthday Night is a celebration not alone of birthdays occurring during the summer, but of all birthdays, and it takes place on the night of August 26 that date being chosen as the determining date of the occasion because it is Mandy's (Mr. Lehman's) birthday. All boys born in the same month join hands to decorate a table and prepare for their birthday month an appropriate skit. A prize is awarded for the best table and for the best skit.

In 1924, William Boogar, a member of the staff, who later accompanied McMillan on an Arctic trip, added the now traditional Totem Pole to Wigwam's landmarks. Mr. Boogar interested a group of boys to assist him in carving out of wood the Indian Totem pole which stands today, nineteen feet tall, overlooking Bear Lake, whose legend its wood carvings depict. The following year, Boogar supervised a group of boys in the camp project of carving the wood and stone entrance to the camp grounds. That same year, Harold Gottgen and Stan Lyndes produced a magnificent collection of Indian bows and arrows, and archery as a sport required a great success.

Tradition and personage go hand in hand to make 1925 one of Wigwam's outstanding seasons. During that summer, Leopold Godowsky, regarded as one of the outstanding pianists and composers of the age, made his first visit to Wigwam. Mandy joined him at the end of the season in a concert tour in Africa. In that same season Wigwam staged its first Concerts of Water, Forest, and Land, a regatta and an exhibition of floats in pagentry. 1925 is also a milestone in the development of the sport of riflery at camp. In that year the range was 200 yards, but the sport was introduced on a thoroughly organized basis. The Winchester Junior Rifle Corps News commented in that year: "We know of no camp that made a finer record in its first year. Camp Wigwam is to be congratulated, and we predict a great future for the sport in this camp. It has been my privilege to visit Wigwam many times and to see the camp in its present state, and I can truthfully say that Camp Wigwam ranks among the finest camps that I have visited." (As Camp Wigwam, under the direction of Mr. Lehman, was founded by Mr. Lehman, who was in charge of the camp from 1910 to 1929 and 1930.)

No less outstanding in that year and in succeeding years is the perfection of the educational program. With a variety of activities covering nature, dramatics, stagecraft, music, scientific, manual arts, and crafts, publications, photography, and library Wigwam has attained a camp program directed by experts which is variable camp model. The accomplishments, such as the issuance of a Camp Wigwam Nature Book, the organization of the Wigwam Players (a permanent body), the building of the Post Office by the Manual Arts group in 1928 and the issuance of distinctive Wigwam Annuals are a tribute to the camp's well rounded progressiveness. The latest step in this direction is the establishment of a new building, which will be completed in 1932 and 1930 of an aeronautics activity operated er-counselor and Wigwam-Waterford games were the outstanding yearly base ball contests in the past. The annual Bridgton Inter-camp Meets, however, were the epochal events of the season. Colorful and exciting, what Wigwam camper of other years can forget those memorable days when the camp campers, in an annual trek to Bridgton, where Wigwam's counselors and campers sought new athletic laurels to attain. Such stars as Edgar, Jesse, Berge, Al, and Fred, and Isaac and Eddie Weil bring back pleasant memories as the flying speedsters who carried Wigwam's leading spot-putter and his leaves always won places for Wigwam at the Bridgton meet. It was then the Bridgton Tennis Tournament! How the camp thrilled when Mandy, its tennis champion, pitted his skill against Maine's best to win new laurels for Wigwam. Those were stirring bygone days which Wigwam campers of old will never forget.

Came the war in 1917. Wigwam's campers expressed a keen interest in military training and consequently a camp military unit was organized. These youngsters shouldered their guns and went about their military duty and shined bayonets with precision and ease which amazed all for those imaginary opponents who attacked Camp Wigwam. But even in times of war, the domestic arts were not forgotten. Wigwam's campers went to the farm. Vegetables were planted and grown in Wigwam's soil and the campers had their lessons in agriculture.

With the war at an end and the campers in such proportions that an attempt to return to normalcy, Wigwam was indeed a haven of peace and contentment during post-war days. The staff, now enlarged, had assumed a traditional normalcy and the equipment had been added to and improved. The program of the camp was more ambitious than ever before. In 1919, Wigwam inaugurated its first Campers' Day. About four hundred visitors were invited, including parents, townpeople and boys and girls from neighboring camps. They assembled in the grove where dramatic entertainment was provided and an inter-camp song contest held. The proceeds of the day were donated to charity. This established Wigwam's first campers' day, which has grown in such proportions that audiences numbering almost 1500 have been common within the last few years.

1920 is a memorable year for Wigwam's future leaders. It was in that year that Dr. Clyde Fisher, then Assistant Curator and now holder of two curatorships at the American Museum of Natural History, made his advent at Wigwam. Dr. Fisher, expert teacher and renowned naturalist, reorganized the Nature Department and has supervised it ever since. The stories of his expeditions to Ireland and Lapland have proved educational treats for the camp.

As the camp program and facilities were enlarged, the enrollment increased. By 1921 it reached 100. It was in that year that Colonel Sewall, Teddy Roosevelt's guide delighted Wigwam boys by his visit to camp. That season also witnessed the establishment of two institutions which are now traditions at Wigwam: The Hall of Fame to pay tribute to members of the staff who had made an outstanding contribution to Wigwam, and Red and Gray Week, a form of competition in which the two camps of Wigwam, the Red and Gray, were to compete in all activities in most of all camps today.

In 1922, Wigwam publications were reorganized and expanded, with the Wigwam entering a new phase of its career as an annual record of the season. The task of one publication serving as a reporter, as a critic, as an advertising medium, as a pictorial record of camp life, as an expression of the red-blooded American boy's attitude toward things, and as a container of the camp's overflow of humor, besides having to serve as the aspiration for a regular morning educational activity in the camp routine proved too much and consequently a weekly newspaper of four pages relieved the Wigwam of its role as a news reporter.

The season of 1923 witnessed the introduction of Birthday Night, one of Wigwam's most elaborate traditions, surpassed only by the Water Carnival and Campers' Day. This event was devised to replace the former method of celebrating birthdays by awarding a cake to the individual birthday. Birthday Night is a celebration not alone of birthdays occurring during the summer, but of all birthdays, and it takes place on the night of August 26 that date being chosen as the determining date of the occasion because it is Mandy's (Mr. Lehman's) birthday. All boys born in the same month join hands to decorate a table and prepare for their birthday month an appropriate skit. A prize is awarded for the best table and for the best skit.

In 1924, William Boogar, a member of the staff, who later accompanied McMillan on an Arctic trip, added the now traditional Totem Pole to Wigwam's landmarks. Mr. Boogar interested a group of boys to assist him in carving out of wood the Indian Totem pole which stands today, nineteen feet tall, overlooking Bear Lake, whose legend its wood carvings depict. The following year, Boogar supervised a group of boys in the camp project of carving the wood and stone entrance to the camp grounds. That same year, Harold Gottgen and Stan Lyndes produced a magnificent collection of Indian bows and arrows, and archery as a sport required a great success.

Tradition and personage go hand in hand to make 1925 one of Wigwam's outstanding seasons. During that summer, Leopold Godowsky, regarded as one of the outstanding pianists and composers of the age, made his first visit to Wigwam. Mandy joined him at the end of the season in a concert tour in Africa. In that same season Wigwam staged its first Concerts of Water, Forest, and Land, a regatta and an exhibition of floats in pagentry. 1925 is also a milestone in the development of the sport of riflery at camp. In that year the range was 200 yards, but the sport was introduced on a thoroughly organized basis. The Winchester Junior Rifle Corps News commented in that year: "We know of no camp that made a finer record in its first year. Camp Wigwam is to be congratulated, and we predict a great future for the sport in this camp. It has been my privilege to visit Wigwam many times and to see the camp in its present state, and I can truthfully say that Camp Wigwam ranks among the finest camps that I have visited." (As Camp Wigwam, under the direction of Mr. Lehman, was founded by Mr. Lehman, who was in charge of the camp from 1910 to 1929 and 1930.)

No less outstanding in that year and in succeeding years is the perfection of the educational program. With a variety of activities covering nature, dramatics, stagecraft, music, scientific, manual arts, and crafts, publications, photography, and library Wigwam has attained a camp program directed by experts which is variable camp model. The accomplishments, such as the issuance of a Camp Wigwam Nature Book, the organization of the Wigwam Players (a permanent body), the building of the Post Office by the Manual Arts group in 1928 and the issuance of distinctive Wigwam Annuals are a tribute to the camp's well rounded progressiveness. The latest step in this direction is the establishment of a new building, which will be completed in 1932 and 1930 of an aeronautics activity operated er-counselor and Wigwam-Waterford games were the outstanding yearly base ball contests in the past. The annual Bridgton Inter-camp Meets, however, were the epochal events of the season. Colorful and exciting, what Wigwam camper of other years can forget those memorable days when the camp campers, in an annual trek to Bridgton, where Wigwam's counselors and campers sought new athletic laurels to attain. Such stars as Edgar, Jesse, Berge, Al, and Fred, and Isaac and Eddie Weil bring back pleasant memories as the flying speedsters who carried Wigwam's leading spot-putter and his leaves always won places for Wigwam at the Bridgton meet. It was then the Bridgton Tennis Tournament! How the camp thrilled when Mandy, its tennis champion, pitted his skill against Maine's best to win new laurels for Wigwam. Those were stirring bygone days which Wigwam campers of old will never forget.

Came the war in 1917. Wigwam's campers expressed a keen interest in military training and consequently a camp military unit was organized. These youngsters shouldered their guns and went about their military duty and shined bayonets with precision and ease which amazed all for those imaginary opponents who attacked Camp Wigwam. But even in times of war, the domestic arts were not forgotten. Wigwam's campers went to the farm. Vegetables were planted and grown in Wigwam's soil and the campers had their lessons in agriculture.

in conjunction with Manual Arts. The youngsters study, build and fly airplane models. The traditions and friendships of bygone years and their ever pleasant reminiscences have inspired its former campers and counselors to organize an annual group of campers, the 1930 Wigwam Alumni News. Such an organization comprising hundreds of former Wigwam campers and counselors representing every section of the country, is a tribute to Wigwam for it is a manifestation to keep alive that spirit of Wigwam which is worthy of living. Wigwam has fulfilled the ambition of its founders—it is a force in the life of its campers.

BRIDGTON HIGHLANDS

Mr. and Mrs. George Street of Providence, R. I. were recent week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiggin. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Chamberlain were recent campers at Wigwam. A delightful evening was enjoyed Sunday, Aug. 7, through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Forest Abbott, when two young ladies staying in a nearby cottage gave an exhibition of marionettes. It was most skillfully and artistically presented and also was the first opportunity the community has had to visit the new social hall connected with Tarry-a-White. It is an ideal building for the purpose for which it was built.

John Fitzpatrick has been home for a short visit. Just before the rain of Wednesday, Aug. 3, Dr. Ernest Carreiro of Brookline, Mass., Miss Louise McDonnell and Tella Johnson of New York City left for a vacation on an expedition of fishing. The rain began to fall and the motor refused action, while the high waves made it impossible to cross the lake. After five hours they finally succeeded in reaching Knoles Point, where they remained in the drenching downpour until about eleven p. m., when a rescuing party consisting of Mrs. Redfield of Ingalls and Mr. and Mrs. George Street of Delos Hill, Leon Whitney and Davis Buckman, who succeeded in rescuing them. Great fear was felt by the people of the Ridgeville and citizens of the town and the experience was not one to be desired repeated.

Clinton Milliken is doing some carpenter work for Mr. Chubb of North Lovell. George Mills is working for Mr. Milliken. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McAlister and baby Marilyn took dinner Tuesday, with his sister, Mrs. Bert K. Hall. Florence Smith of East Stoughton is visiting Susan Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mills and family attended the Andrews reunion in Sweden, Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Davis and three daughters of Norway were supper guests at Henry Fox's Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kendall and three daughters called on Mrs. Abbie Trask in Locke's Mills, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Barnum and daughter of Washington, D. C. are visiting his sister, Mrs. Gertrude MacSherry. Mrs. Leland Wilson and children of Center Lovell are stopping a few days at Mr. Milliken's cottage on Cushman Lake.

Arlington Files went on Mt. Washington, Monday, with some young people from Waterford and Stoughton. Mr. and Mrs. Oram Bennett and baby, Sheila, of Fryeburg, were callers at Bert Kendall's, Wednesday, also Albert Bickford of Rochester, N. H., is visiting at his home in Fryeburg. The Whitehouses entertained company from Ramford, Sunday.

Iva Kendall spent Sunday night with her sister, Mrs. Edmon McDaniel. Mr. and Mrs. George Street of Providence, R. I. were recent week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiggin. Mr. and Mrs. Wm.
